

STATE POLICE
WARN AGAINST BANK BANDITS

Employees and Persons Living
Nearby Should Always Be Ready

FOR AN EMERGENCY

Keep Strict Lookout for All
Persons of A Suspicious
Nature

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 18.—In the midst of an epidemic of bank robberies throughout Pennsylvania that have been occurring almost daily in the past two weeks, Corporal William Francis, in command of the local sub-station of State Police, today issued a warning and advice to all banking institutions, local police officials and people living or working in the vicinity of banks in Bucks county.

Believing that a Bucks county bank might be selected by the hold-up ring at any time, Corporal Francis says that a little precaution taken now may prevent a bank robbery in Bucks county or may lead to the capture of the robbers in case a bank is held up.

State Police throughout the state have been asked to appeal to every community in their district through the press and to lose no time in doing so.

"It is simply a matter of common sense and if carried out properly, bank robberies in Pennsylvania will decrease greatly," Corporal Francis declared.

State Police asked all bank officials and employees in Bucks county to be constantly on guard for any suspicious persons entering a bank for the purpose of getting the layout of the interior.

Local police in all towns in Bucks county where banks are located are asked to immediately make arrangements with their local telephone exchange for an alarm system in case a bank is robbed.

Arrangements should be made, Corporal Francis says, so that when a robbery is committed and reported to the telephone exchange, the operator will immediately notify the operators in towns located in every direction from the town in which the robbery was committed.

The operators in turn will get in touch with the local police in the town. In that manner the territory will be covered in less time and there is a much better chance of the State Police knowing in which direction to proceed.

Merchants or anyone else living opposite a bank or across the street from a bank in Bucks county are asked to keep a loaded shot gun in a handy place in case of a bank robbery. This is done in many communities and has worked out successfully. The gun should be kept at a place easy of access.

In case of bank robbery or in case of suspicious looking people visiting any Bucks county bank, officials or residents of the community are asked to call immediately the State Police sub-station nearest to the home locality.

State Police telephone numbers and location of the sub-station in Bucks county are as follows:

Doylestown 48.
Morrisville 2-7527.
Langhorne 110.

The State Highway Patrol numbers and station locations are as follows: Edison sub-station, reached by calling Doylestown 15; and the Langhorne sub-station by calling Langhorne 261.

It would be well for local organizations, such as the American Legion Post, service clubs or chambers of commerce, to see to it that the suggestions of the State Police be carried out.

These bonds will be of $1000 denomination and will bear 4 1/2 per cent.

Down came a key, through the door went the strangers. And W. A. Lay and Martin Hochs were under arrest for operation of a saloon. The strangers were Federal dry agents.

CARD CLUB AIDS NEEDY

CHRISTMAS season will have a fuller meaning, and charity will mean more to a group of Bristol women who have decided to sacrifice individual pleasure in order that Bristol's needy might benefit.

An annual occasion of jollity and festivity, at this time of the year, has for years meant much in the social line to members of Card Club No. 9, but this year the need of families in Bristol means much more to these thoughtful individuals.

And so, long before the New Year, a resolution to forego their own pleasure this season has been made, and the money which the members have steadily been saving for the past twelve months will be sacrificed and used for food and clothing for the hungry and the cold.

Mrs. H. J. Jensenius, treasurer of Card Club No. 9, has presented to the Central Relief Committee a check for $20 as a donation from the club, toward the fund of $2,000 which the Central Relief Committee is soliciting, and with which aid will be given to those in Bristol who are worthy and in need.

Those who have, and can afford to give, are urged to do so, and to forward their contributions to Thomas Scott, treasurer, at Farmers National Bank.

Give, and give now!

GIRL RESERVES MAKE
TOTS HAPPY AT PARTY

Annual Christmas Affair Is Staged in High School
"Gym"

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

The Girl Reserves entertained one hundred and fifty of the needy children of the town in the high school auditorium at a Christmas party, yesterday afternoon.

A large Christmas tree was the center of attraction and Santa appeared and delivered an interesting talk to the small guests. The afternoon was also spent in the enjoyment of playing a number of games.

Each child was given a large candy cane and refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served.

The children were taken to the school building and home in private cars, and were afforded a time of real merriment and fun.

Just before Christmas, these children will be given baskets of food, candy and toys. Clothes will also be among the gifts. The Fathers' Association has very generously helped toward the clothes and the Mothers' Association has provided some toys.

Mrs. David Neill, Mrs. Christopher Buchler, Jr., Mrs. William Johns and Mrs. Walter Fagan, members of the advisory board of the Girl Reserves, as well as the Misses Rachel Bartine, Effie Watson and Helen Taylor, of the local public school faculty, and Miss Nora Jones, community nurse, also attended and helped with the party. Miss Doris Johns is president of the Reserves.

Santa Claus Visits The Mothers' Association, Here

The Mothers' Association of Bristol schools held a meeting last evening in the high school auditorium. After business the entertainment committee took charge, and the annual Christmas party was staged.

Each mother present had taken two gifts, one for a child which was put in a box for the Girl Reserves to add to their collection of toys to give out the day before Christmas. The other gift was for a "Mother."

The lights in the "gym" went out, and Santa and his reindeer could be heard coming. "Ma's" orchestra was playing "Jingle Bells," and then there came the big moment when the lights were turned on and there was Santa and his big pack of gifts, which were distributed, and "Oh's" and "Ah's" were heard.

Games were played and dancing enjoyed. A delicious repast in keeping with the holiday season was served.

PLAN CHORAL SERVICE
AT BENSELEM SCHOOL

Two Musical Clubs Will Combine for Yuletide Program

BASKETBALL S O O N

BENSELEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, Cornwells Heights, Dec. 18.—There will be a Christmas choral service given by the junior and senior glee clubs of the high school in the auditorium on Tuesday, December 23rd. No admission charge will be made and everyone is welcome to attend. The glee clubs of the high school are supported by very good talent, and have been coached by a capable instructor. This event cannot help but be a success.

The senior play proved to be a great success. The outstanding actor budded forth in the personage of Miss Helen Cobleigh, of Cornwells. Quite a large crowd attended and everyone enjoyed the performance.

Last Friday brought forth another of the more and more interesting assembly programs in the high school auditorium. The exercise opened with a Bible reading by Mr. Spitzer, of the social department. Following this was a song by the students entitled "Heavenly Concord"; Harry Seltzer favored the student body with a solo entitled "Lassie of Mine"; Harry Seltzer and John Judd combined their talents in a duet, "Perfect Day"; Alma MacKenzie recited "Song of the Market Place," which proved to be very interesting. Christmas songs were then sung by the entire student body, followed by early dismissal in order that the various classes could have their regular meetings.

Couch Miller came forth with the statement that both girls and boys are practicing diligently for the coming basketball season. The opening game will be played shortly after the Christmas holiday season.

Plans are being made for the decoration of the high school building during the Christmas season. No doubt the building will be very attractive for the vacation period.

NEWS BRIEFS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—Only 2.64 miles of highway were added to the state system during the week of Dec. 6-13, the state highway department announced, due to inclement weather. Total mileage for the year at the end of that period was 1,310.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 18.—(INS)—Prize deer kill of this region was reported here by Xavier Cusick, of Utahville, as the big game hunting season closed for the year.

Cusick bagged himself a 20-point buck in Dean township, Cambria county, with a spread of antlers of more than thirty inches.

NEWS BRIEFS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—The auditor-general and state treasurer may not lawfully approve payment of expenses for members of the Township law revision commission's attendance at either the convention of second class township supervisors, in February, 1931, nor for appearing before the legislature to explain bills or advocate their passage. Attorney General William A. Schnader notified W. H. Whitaker, Upper Darby, secretary of the commission, in a written opinion.

The attorney general's opinion held that it was the duty of the commission to report to the legislature not later than Feb. 1st next, but that it was not its duty to appear before the legislature or before a township supervisors' convention.

Mr. Craig, Sr., of Harrisburg, was a recent overnight guest of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Craig, of 256 Jackson street.

NEWS BRIEFS

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—In an opinion handed down by Justice Linn, of the Superior Court, Mrs. Justine Sames Gruver, widow of Willis Sames, who was killed four years ago last spring when an apparatus of the Perkasio Fire Company was ditched near Quakertown, will be paid a claim which has been under consideration for several years.

Mrs. Gruver, who has since married, soon after the fatal accident filed a claim for damage against the borough of Perkasio which carried insurance on its firemen.

Sames met his death on April 1, 1926, at the same time Jacob Crouthamel, another Perkasio fireman, was killed while the apparatus was on its way to Quakertown to take part in a practice drill at Quakertown. Since that time there have been many legal technicalities with which to contend.

When Mrs. Gruver's claim reached the hands of the compensation referee, the case was dismissed on the grounds that Sames, although he was a member of the Perkasio Fire Company, was loaned for the time being to the Quakertown Fire Department. This held Quakertown responsible and in turn the department of that town made an appeal to the Workmen's Compensation Board which reversed the decision of the compensation referee. This again made Perkasio responsible.

Finally Mrs. Gruver was awarded $4,704.14, but the insurance company which protected the Perkasio firemen appealed the decision of the Workmen's Compensation Board to the court of Common Pleas of Bucks county, but the Court at that time affirmed the opinion of the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Falling in this, the insurance company appealed the case to the Superior Court and it, too, affirmed the opinion of the Workmen's Compensation Board and consequently the insurance company must pay Mrs. Gruver the $4,704.14.

During the hearing of the case the question as to whether Sames was actually in the employ of the Perkasio Fire Department when he was on the way to take part in the drill at Quakertown arose. It was also questioned as to whether Sames was in the employ of the Perkasio Fire Department or the Quakertown Fire Department.

Word that the opinion of the Workmen's Compensation Board was sustained by the Superior Court was sent Mark Thatcher, Mrs. Gruver's attorney, a few days ago.

TWO WOMEN HELD UNDER BAIL ON
ROBBERY CHARGES

Hearing Given Yesterday in Philadelphia Police Station

COAT IS IDENTIFIED

Individuals Whose Homes
Have Been Robbed Attend
The Hearing

The two women arrested by Philadelphia police in that city on Monday and whose apartment was found to contain a large quantity of loot stolen from residences in Morrisville and Edgely are now under bail until the authorities have completed their investigation.

The pair was given a hearing yesterday in the police station at 22nd and Huntington Park avenue, which is part of the 39th police district.

Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo along with the State police from Morrisville and those whose homes in Bucks County have been recently robbed, were present.

The women, Mary Jackaway, 18, 1108 Walnut street, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Reeves, alias Jackaway, 24, of the same address, stood trial.

The loot was stacked up in a large room at the police station where the quantity startled even detectives who work daily on similar cases. Wholesale hauls had been made at numerous residences which the trio, disguised as "tourists," had singled out while riding about. By frequent changes of license plates they made their trail difficult to follow, it is alleged.

Detective Russo said today that detainers had been lodged in the case.

The "tourists" carried two or three suitcases strapped upon the side of their car during their visits, it is said. Returning after dark to selected houses where it had been ascertained that no one was at home, they packed the suitcases and disappeared.

As Martha Reeves, alias Jackaway, walked into the hearing room yesterday Mrs. Charles Koch, Edgely, was somewhat surprised when she saw the woman wearing the fur coat which had been stolen from the Koch home, in September.

"That's my coat you've got on," exclaimed Mrs. Koch.

Both women were held under $2,000 bail for a further hearing December 24th.

Clothing and bonds removed from the home of Charles R. Krewson, of 210 Arborea avenue, Morris Heights, were identified by him at the 39th District Police Station in Philadelphia. Edgar M. Fisher, of Fisher Road, Morris Heights, was likewise rewarded for his trip to look over the hoodie.

QUITE A CUSTOM

Newspaper readers would certainly like to know a little more about that "usual exchange of good wishes for the new year" which the efficient Mussolini has determined to put down in the Italian civil service.

We are told, and the words are Mussolini's, that these greetings "interrupt for hours and sometimes for days before and after New Year's day the work of the government."

What a gorgeous break in "the trivial round, the common task" of a government department—but how exhausting! It sounds as though it would need a Jorjacks or one of the old three-bottle men to stand up to such an extensive outburst of conviviality; in the Italian civil service it must be about Easter before the weaklings fully recover from the New Year's.

This shocking state of affairs in Mussolini's Italy will give our own bureaucrats at Washington and the various state capitals an inferiority complex, if it does not make them pink with envy. The most they have been getting away with is a prolonged vacation during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

WHERE ARE THE HEROES?

It is a curious and perhaps significant thing that of all the days of the great war only one is recalled by formal celebration, and that was not the day of a great victory but the day marking the end of hostilities.

A similar fate seems to have overtaken the heroes of the war. Today, for example, little is heard of the great military leaders of the World War. While their names have not been forgotten, they have at least dropped from day to day thoughts. Beside figures like Alexander, Frederick, Napoleon, Lee, Grant and Washington the chieftains of the last war do not seem popular heroes.

The simple truth is that the war did not produce heroes in the old way; or, if it did, then the public today cares less about military heroes. Hindenburg survives with the love of a defeated people. A few like Allenby are remembered for dashing exploits, but they were in minor campaigns and their fame is a smaller thing, too. There are no Grants or Kitcheners still catching the general eye and imagination.

And the American people has not sent a single general in that war to the white house.

Among other things gradually getting back to par is idealism.

Motor prospects for 1931 are less promising for the pedestrian.

Speaking of martyrs, what about the skinny girl dressing that way in sub-zero weather?

Nowadays the only ones whose political opinions differ are those who belong to the same party.

"The act of speaking calls into operation 44 different muscles." Occasionally it can be made attractive by calling in the brain.

Even though it's just an image, television will give you something to throw a book at when the radio tenor begins crooning.

Fretz is charged with taking a leading part in beating up and robbing Peter Dulakowski, 34, of Lansdale, on a road in Hilltown township, in August, 1926. Dulakowski was robbed of $39.

Police say that Dulakowski was thrown out of an automobile. The following day he was found in a dazed manner walking toward Lansdale.

Three men arrested at the time were tried in the Bucks County Court and sentenced by the late Judge William C. Ryan. They are Joseph Howe, 26, Lansdale, who served four months; Joseph Malander, 27, Lansdale, who served four months, and Frank Mat-tero, 24, who served six months.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Hollenbeck, young and beautiful, wants to keep her newest beau, Mat Tully, all to herself. Returning from a ride she leaves him at the door to avoid her mother's questionings and her sister's stares.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY

MOTHER WARNS AGAINST MARRYING POOR MAN

CHAPTER II.

LOU stitched on in the electric silence. Mama's chair squeaked. Papa rustled his papers, pretending to read. Nancy, flushed and more surprised than indignant, hung on her answer.

"Oh, it isn't that you aren't pretty," she said finally. "You are, of course. Awfully pretty. I didn't mean that you weren't, but who cares? Not Cary Fleming and Gil Neal and all that crowd. They can get a million pretty girls—not as pretty as you, perhaps. But pretty enough. The woods are full of them. All looking for men with money. What the men want is someone with a fortune—like May Belle Craig. Or a wonderful place in society like that fat Preston girl. Take my advice and grab have! Take my advice and grab have! He may not have much now, but I'd bank on him getting ahead. You'd never starve with him—he'll make money fast enough!"

"Hm. . . mmm." Papa cleared his throat nervously. He was sensitive about the subject of money. Poor Peter Hollenbeck, who had never made any money, and owed so much. . . so terribly much.

"I'd like to see May Belle Craig or Vera Preston get Mat Tully away from me!" Nancy hadn't meant to say that, it just slipped out.

"Girls!" Mama's little wrinkled hands fluttered in protest. "You mustn't SAY such things. It—it sounds common."

Common Truth

"The truth is always common!" Louise flashed back. "That's why we never hear it around here. We're so—so darned refined we never face anything. We just go on pretending, fooling ourselves, and nobody else."

"LOUISE!" Mrs. Hollenbeck's voice rose to a shrill whistle. "I won't HAVE it! I don't know where you GET that common streak. I'm sure it's not from MY side of the family. When I was a young girl, I'd no more have thought of cursing at my dear mother than—I'd have thought of jumping in the b-bay!"

Her voice broke, the little claw-like hands groped for her handkerchief, her mild eyes, forget-me-nots in the colorless wreck of her once pretty face, dripped slow tears.

"Kitty, Kitty dear," papa begged, "don't excite yourself. You'll have one of your headaches. Here, dear, take my handkerchief, it's clean. Why, Louise didn't mean to hurt your feelings, did you, Lou?"

Mama sniffed hopefully, waiting for the apology. But Louise, tired and angry after a long, hot day of washing and ironing and mending—"pressing out a few things," it was euphemistically called in the Hollenbeck household—shut her mouth tightly, and made it plain that she had nothing more to say.

In the angry silence, punctuated only by mama's heartbroken sniffs and papa's clucking comfort, Nancy slipped upstairs to bed.

It was just as she knew it would be. The family post-mortems were always the same. You couldn't even fall in love decently and quietly. Louise's hawk eye would discover it, and mama would start prying, and in a minute all that would be left of your shining lover would be a few discolored, decomposing shreds. "It isn't FAIR," she whispered, her lips against the pillow—it isn't fair—

"Nancy!"

Mama's voice at the door. Nancy lay perfectly rigid, feigning sleep. "Nancy, it's mama," Mrs. Hollenbeck tiptoed in, and closed the door behind her, switching on the light.

Nancy sighed and sat up. "I should think you'd let me sleep when you know I'm tired, and it's my turn to get papa's breakfast," mama said absently, ignoring the reproach and shuffling around the bedroom, straightening a shade here, pulling at a dresser cover there, a little blind without her glasses. "This, this Mr. Tully, dear. Is he one of the Fairchild Tullys? Find out if he's one of the Washington family, dear. They're very fine people. Quite well to do. I thought he had an air about him. . . as if he were used to nice things. When I was a girl I knew an Evangeline Tully. Her mother was one of the Skinners, the sugar

The dark lashes quivered. "No, I won't do anything foolish. I must have been crazy to ever think . . . to ever think . . ."

"Tell mama—to ever think WHAT, dear?"

"Oh, to get romantic about Mat. To think I . . . the family oh, please, mama, go to BED!"

"Mama's girls!" The little padded figure in the fraying satin dressing gown leaned closer. Her dry lips brushed Nancy's—and she had never felt so far away . . . so shut out . . . so unwanted . . . "Nancy, speak to mama!" she cried, afraid, afraid of something, of some new unnamed thing coming between her and her girl, her baby . . .

"What do you want me to say, for goodness sake?" Nancy was watching her, with cold, appraising curiosity.

The Warning

"It's just that—that you seemed so quiet," she faltered. "Mama was afraid you didn't understand." She wanted to cry out, to gather her daughter to her meagre breast, to croon over her as she did when people. They kept very fine horses. I remember the livery, plum color with—"

"Lou's all wrong about his making money."

Poor But Satisfied

"I'm sure he's no relation," the girl answered patiently. "He's from Kansas City. And Lou's all wrong about his making money. He—he's an idealist. He HATES business men. He told me he did. He hasn't a nickel. He drives the worst old car you ever saw, and he LIKES it!"

For a woman who has just decorated the church and chosen the wedding breakfast, Mrs. Hollenbeck took the blow bravely. Perhaps it was because she had seen so many imaginary bridegrooms shrivel and die.

"Well, don't see too much of him, dear. People might—might misunderstand. I don't want anyone to have the chance to talk about one of my girls." And after a long, uncomfortable pause, "Other young men would think you were interested in him, and . . . that is . . . they would be afraid to pay you attention."

She expected an answer, a protest against giving up the good-looking Mr. Tully so soon, but none came. Nancy lay back against her pillows, her eyes closed, her young mouth sullen and hard.

"Nancy, promise mama you won't do anything foolish!"

she was a baby, but she couldn't do that. She couldn't even talk naturally with Nancy watching her like that, so coldly. "I want you to be happy," she struggled on, awkwardly. "I—I haven't anything in the world but you girls. I'm advising you for your own good."

"You don't know what it means to be poor—to marry a poor man. I—I did, you know. It's been so hard. Nobody knows. Your father and I have looked forward so to you girls marrying well . . . ooh, you don't understand!" She broke down and wept, uncontrollably then, until Nancy, murmuring endearments, took her into her strong, slender arms, and bullied and coaxed her back to calm.

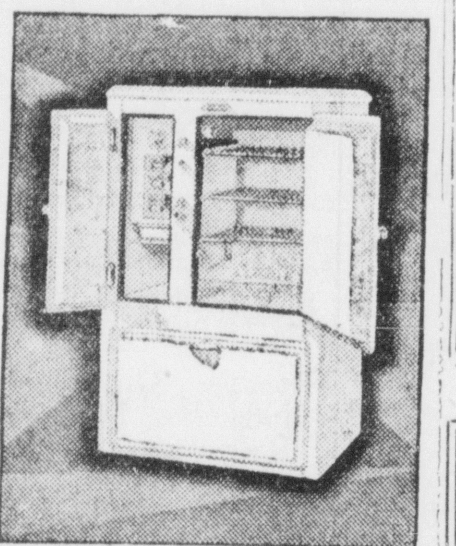

So Kitty Hollenbeck went back to her room comforted, and it was not until she woke at dawn (was that someone crying in the house or just the wind rattling the stiff leaves of the magnolia tree?) that she remembered that all the while Nancy was petting her, her eyes remained hard and cold.

"A trick of the light," she decided. "My girls think too much of their mother . . . good girls . . . I know them too well."

But it is the unusual mother who knows her own daughter in the year of our Lord, 1930.

Sheriff's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of a writ of Levavi Facias to me directed, will be sold at public sale, on Friday the ninth day of January, 1931, at 11 o'clock A. M., at the Sheriff's Office, in the Borough of Doylestown, Bucks County, Pa., the following real estate, to wit:

AROUND THE WORLD TODAY

By William S. Neal
L. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—With Republican leaders demanding their rank and file "stand by the President," the House today moved toward a decision on the Senate $50,000,000 drought-relief bill with its provision that the loan money can be used by farmers to buy food and clothing as well as feed for livestock and seed.

The administration spokesmen were standing pat on the House agriculture committee's proposal to slash the Senate bill to $30,000,000 and eliminate the word food, but there were indications the amount might be boosted to $49,000,000.

A restless House plunged into consideration of the bill again, after nearly four hours of acrimonious debate yesterday during which charges of bad faith were hurled at Secretary of Agriculture Hyde and other members of the Hoover administration.

Hyde disagrees with both Senate and House proposals, believing that $25,000,000 is a sufficient loan fund for farmers in 24 drought-stricken states. He has denounced the provision permitting purchase of food with Government funds as "dangerously near the door."

The present fight followed the unsuccessful effort of Republican leaders to put through a $30,000,000 bill under suspension of rules.

They commanded 250 votes to 149 against, and were confident of having a majority for their plan today.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 18.—(INS)—Application for permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States from the decision of Federal Judge William Clark, holding prohibition invalid, may be filed with Judge

Clark in Newark today by United States Attorney Philip Forman.

Forman, prosecutor in the case in which Judge Clark made his decision, on returning here from a conference with officials in Washington, said he would apply to Judge Clark today for permission to appeal the ruling if the application could be prepared in time, and if not he would ask permission on Friday.

He said the case would be taken directly to the Supreme Court without placing it before the Circuit Court of Appeals.

If the Supreme Court, as was expected, should grant a plea of the Government to advance the case out of the regular order on its docket, a hearing may be reached by February or March and a decision rendered soon afterward, it was said here.

Meanwhile prohibition enforcement in New Jersey was not affected by the Clark decision and raids and court trials of prohibition law violation cases continued as in the past.

State Police Warn Against Bank Bandits

ried out in detail in every community. The local police force in every town, Corporal Francis suggests, should be requested by the Chief Burgess or chairman of the police committee of Borough Council to take proper precautions immediately.

State headquarters of the State Police today notified all State Police sub-stations of the seriousness of the robbery epidemic in Pennsylvania, and urged the commanding officers of every sub-station to "get busy today."

NEWS BRIEFS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 18.—Armed with a search warrant, pistols and plenty of courage, three prohibition agents stealthily approached a building on a mountain south of Macungie, where a still smoked merrily away.

Two of the agents stood guard. The third, automatic in hand, strode up to the door, rapped.

Roy Miller answered and was faced with a search warrant.

"Sure, we got a still here," he told the agents. "Go ahead and search."

They did, and found the still, producing water for battery and garage use.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—(INS)—Customary in the social activities of the chief executive of the state, the annual public reception of the Governor will be held at the executive mansion here January 1st, from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., it was announced here.

Three Are Injured As Motor Truck Hits Wall

One Trenton and two Glenville, Conn., youths were injured yesterday when a truck operated by the Trenton driver got out of control and crashed into a concrete wall, causing one side of the vehicle to fly off and strike the other two, who were riding on a motorcycle, knocking them to the ground. The accident occurred about a mile outside of Morrisville.

The injured are: John G. Bodnar, 19 years old, of 221 Woodland street, Trenton, who received lacerations of the head and face, and Joseph Myder, 21 years old, and Joseph Klosenski, 17, who suffered cuts and bruises. All were taken to Chambersburg Hospital, Trenton, for treatment.

In explaining to Trooper Keuch, of the Morrisville State Police, Bodnar said that "everything went black in front of me and the last thing I remember was reaching for the emergency brake."

Myder was operating the motorcycle and Klosenski was on the tandem. They were following the truck at the time of the accident.

A Perfect Wife for A Modern Young Man —and a Professor Lists the "Virtues"

A Veritable Paragon Is This Mythical Young Lady, but Thinks Winifred Black, the Professor Has Overlooked That One Vital Element—Love!

By WINIFRED BLACK

WELL, girls, now we know all about it.

Dr. Edward Cornell, of Northwestern University Medical School, stood up the other day and told the Northwestern students just what kind of a wife to choose.

He made a tabulated list of the qualities a girl should have to make a good wife.

"Number One—Health. Don't marry a girl who can't run one hundred yards close to thirteen seconds."

"My, my, professor what do you think marriage is, anyway a running match?"

"Number Two—Jealousy. A professional man cannot afford a jealous secretary or wife."

Well, we will all agree with you about that, Professor Cornell. But why draw the line at a professional man? Can any kind of a man afford a jealous wife, when it comes to that?

"Thrifty—like doctors, most lawyers at the beginning are penniless and cannot afford an extravagant wife."

But tell me, Professor, where is a young man going to find a wife who is not extravagant and what would he do with one if he had her?

A "radio, a reader, a vacation trip every year—why what young man could look forward to life without these things—whether he had a cent to pay for them or not? And listen, Professor, did you ever know a young man, with a nice, economical, thrifty wife, who left her at home to step down the highway with some little runt who couldn't even spell economy—much less practice it?"

"Education—college degree preferred."

Uh-huh, well that's all right if the man happens to like the college type—some men don't.

"Social training, tact, good taste in dress and home management, and the ability to entertain are very essential."

Yeah, so they tell us in the books—but what young man in love with a roughish eye and a dimple believes a word of it—as long as he is in love!

"Business training—this is most essential, as most professional men are poor bookkeepers."

"Children—she should be willing to be a mother to children."

"Freedom to work—she should be willing to allow her husband to attend meetings and conferences at any time."

"Allow"—that word interests me strangely, Professor.

"Beauty—she should have a good appearance and be smart enough to maintain her good looks."

Well, well, quite a program, Professor.

And the Perfect Husband?

Fretty, well dressed, well groomed, thrifty, well educated, clever, tact, charm, business training and fond of children—quite a paragon—eh what?

But tell me, Professor dear, who is the young man who will pay the least attention to any of these things when he meets a "Cute kid" and begins to think he doesn't want her "stepping out" with anyone but him?

I do wish, Professor, you would go to some of the girls' schools and tell the girls to find a Pink of Perfection who would be good enough, and intelligent enough, and uninteresting enough to be a husband for such a girl.

You have told us all about the Perfect Wife now in all fairness, I pray you—bring on your Perfect Husband.

The world is waiting breathlessly for a glimpse of him.

House of Representatives Came Into Its Own in 1930

By William S. Neal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The year 1930 may go down in history as the year in which the national House of Representatives began to come back into its own as a powerful arm of the Federal Government.

For in the closing days of the long session of the 71st Congress the House rose to the defense of President Hoover and the administration and soundly trounced the Senate on the export devaluation feature of the tariff bill and world war veterans pension legislation.

Then along came the November election, which slashed the huge Republican majority in the House to a point where it is still uncertain whether Republicans or Democrats will organize the new Congress next December.

Thus the House has risen in power and in importance in the public eye after having been overshadowed by the great legislative struggles in the Senate for several years.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth maintains that the House is the "higher branch" of Congress under the Constitution. With its members being subjected to campaigns for reelection every two years, it was ordained as the house of direct voice of the people.

And in days gone by the House did rule Congress. Under the Constitution only the House can originate legislation to raise taxes or spend money.

It originates all tariff legislation, all tax measures and first votes on the annual budget of upwards of five billions.

In the days of Speaker Joe Cannon, Champ Clark, Tom Reed and other immortals in the political world, the House dominated legislation. In the last decade it has often been called a rubber stamp of the administration and a subject of the Senate.

During the first half of the present year, the House played its part on many measures. It had passed the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Bill carrying the highest tariff rates in history. After a long struggle the Senate passed the bill with scores of rates cut, although still so high that it was assailed on many sides. In settling differences between the two bodies, many of the original high House rates were restored.

On two important provisions, the export devaluation and the administrative features of the flexible tariff, the House scored decisive victories in behalf of President Hoover.

After both House and Senate had passed a bill which President Hoover said conferred inordinate benefits on world war veterans, he was faced with likelihood that the bill would be passed over his veto.

He called Speaker Longworth, Rep. John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican leader; and Rep. Bertrand H. Snell (R) of New York, chairman of the rules committee—"The Big Three" of the House—to his aid.

They put through another bill conferring disability pensions on veterans not disabled in the service. Its benefits were limited to those disabled 25 per cent or more and not paying an income tax.

The Senate assailed the House action—but the bill was passed as the House proposed. President Hoover signed it.

Another struggle between Senate and House is in the making in the present session. It involves disposition of the $125,000,000 war-built Muscle Shoals hydro-electric and nitrate project in Alabama, the Norris Bill abolishing "lame duck" sessions of Congress and appropriation bills.

The House may have to yield to the Senate on the first two measures. It is relied upon by President Hoover to hold down appropriations and minimize the deficit. For usually the House makes budget recommendations and the Senate raised them. Rep. Will R.

Wood (R) of Indiana, a veteran, is chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and he is out to make a record in economy.

A measure passed by both House and Senate—the Reapportionment Bill—may greatly change the complexion of the House in a few years. With the 1930 census showing a great growth in city population the reapportionment of congressional districts provided for by the House means an increase in urban strength. Some estimate the gain at 25.

This not only will weaken the "farm bloc" but it also will increase the strength of anti-Prohibitionists. The Wets have from 100 to 115 votes in the House at the present time, according to Dr. F. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon League. Their strength is estimated at 145 next winter. And reapportionment may increase their strength even more.

The House membership will stay at 435 under the reapportionment law. Many European parliaments contain 500 to 600 members. There is a group in the House seeking an increase, but Speaker Longworth and other leaders maintain that a larger House would be unwieldy.

The present House, with its big Republican majority, is hardly a picturesque body. But it contains one of the most unusual Damon and Pythias cases in the history of politics.

Speaker Nicholas Longworth was born to wealth and position in Cincinnati. John N. Garner, the Democratic leader, was born in poverty on the Texas plains, and made a modest fortune as a goat rancher and later a banker.

They are political enemies, but the closest personal friends. They refer to the official car furnished Speaker Longworth as "our car." They visit each other socially.

But through it all no one has ever accused them of making a bi-partisan deal. On the floor, Garner will assail Longworth roundly. And he aspires to Longworth's place as Speaker if the Democrats should control the next House.

NEWS BRIEFS

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 18.—A sense of humor, substituted for a sense of honor, reflected in the flippant attitude toward things formerly considered substantial, is menacing the moral and spiritual life of the nation, Dr. Herbert F. Randolph, pastor of the Central M. E. Church, declared in an address to the Y. M. C. A. here.

"The art of substitution has never before been carried to such a high pitch," Dr. Randolph declared. "People are substituting credit for cash, gambling for honest work, license for liberty and companionate marriage for wedlock."

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 18.—(INS).—Former Superintendent of Police Chris Rose, defeated by Sheriff Gomer C. Davis, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Lackawanna county. He is the first of an anticipated large number of Republican aspirants to make definite announcement.

Governor-Elect Pinchot's Statement

Governor-elect Pinchot's letter to Senator George T. Wein-gartner, of New Castle, on the president pro tem, reads in part:

"I have nothing to say against Senator Daix personally, and I shall not dwell upon the condition of his health, which I regret, but which makes it probable that he could not fully perform the duties of the office.

Puts State Welfare First

"I find three, and only three, arguments alleged why certain Senators propose to support him. One is a personal liking for him. That reason might be valid if the welfare of Pennsylvania were not at stake. In the present great issue it has no place whatever.

"Another argument is that Senatorial precedent now requires the election of Senator Daix because he was elected president pro tempore for the recess of the Senate. But after that election took place Senator Daix and the machine to which he belongs bolted the Republican ticket. By that action Senator Daix himself disregarded precedent and made himself ineligible for the highest honor that can be bestowed by a Republican Senate.

"The Philadelphia machine has always claimed special consideration in the Legislature because of its regularity. It has now thrown its regularity overboard. The Senate precedent no longer applies to Senator Daix's case. He is himself directly responsible for the fact that every consideration of party loyalty requires his defeat.

"The third argument advanced for Senator Daix is that I am exceeding my proper sphere in urging the defeat of a Philadelphia bolter by the overwhelming majority of the Senate.

In Line for Governor

"Upon this matter the people have spoken in unmistakable terms. One of the main issues upon which I was elected was opposition to the Philadelphia gang. The people of Pennsylvania outside of Philadelphia voted by the huge majority of over 300,000 against putting the Philadelphia machine in control of the Commonwealth. If I am not bound to do everything I can to keep the Philadelphia gang out of control of the State Government, then no one was ever bound to anything by the result of any campaign.

"The president pro tempore appoints all Senate committees, and he refers to committees of his choice all bills while he is presiding. In the absence of the Lieutenant Governor he can call to the chair any member of the Senate he pleases. His is the most influential position in the Senate.

"General Shannon (Lieutenant-Governor-elect) has been desperately sick. I am delighted to know he is recovering, but if neither he nor Senator Daix should be in a position to undergo the severe strain involved in handling the work of the Senate, the public business would be seriously handicapped.

"It is not to be forgotten, also, that the president pro tempore is second in line for the Governorship of Pennsylvania. If the Lieutenant Governor and the Governor should for any reason be incapacitated and unable to serve, the president pro tempore becomes Governor.

"If this should happen, and Senator Daix were at the time president pro tempore, the Philadelphia gang would have achieved its purpose of controlling the Commonwealth through the Governorship.

"Finally, and most important of all, the overwhelming majority of the voters outside of Philadelphia are against putting the Philadelphia machine in a position of power at Harrisburg."

Reveals "secret formula" for delicious biscuits

Mrs. T. Watson has won quite a little local fame with her muffins and popovers. They're always so delicious that it's small wonder her friends ask her for her "secret formula".

"But I have no 'secret formula'," laughs Mrs. Watson. "Unless it's that I always use Davis Baking Powder. Long ago, my mother taught me to always use the finest ingredients possible—and Davis was her favorite brand of baking powder because it's always so dependable.

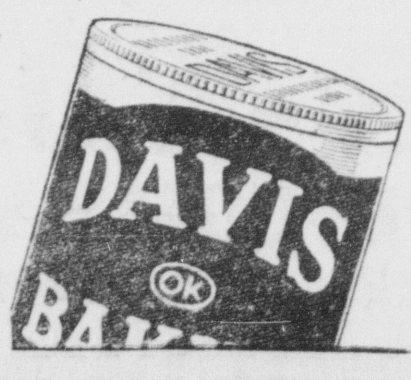

"At any rate, I never had the experience you hear so much about—'bride's first biscuits so heavy you couldn't eat them'. Mine were light and even-grained right from the start, if I do say so myself!" she finished.

Women everywhere are learning this simple secret of water baking

You, too, can have delicious, tempting cakes and muffins this easy way! Just ask for DAVIS—the modern baking powder that is used and recommended by scores of cooking authorities. More economical. On sale at all grocers.

Davis Baking Powder is so dependable it was the brand used exclusively at the Bristol Courier Cooking School.

YEAR IN TENNIS SAW
RISE OF YOUNGSTERS

By Les Conklin
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The year 1930, with the meteoric rise of John Doe, Frank Shields and other youngsters, witnessed the greatest upheaval in American tennis since Bill Tilden, Little Bill Johnston and Vinnie Richards monopolized the spotlight.

The national tournament, a series of upsets culminating in the meeting between Doe and Shields in the final, marked the ascendancy of youth over age. Tilden, Frank Hunter and Jean Borotra fell before the relentless rush of the younger generation.

The triumph of Doe, twenty-one-year-old southpaw and chop stroke artist, inaugurates a new system of championship play. Power, swift charges to the net and smashing volleys have conquered skill, strategy, coolness and experience.

Doe eliminated Tilden in the semi-finals. The old champion had made a grand comeback earlier in the year by winning at Wimbledon and by taking the measure in the only victory scored by the United States in the Davis Cup matches with France. The Americans lost all chance to regain the trophy when Allison and Van Ryn lost to Cochet and Brugnon in the doubles.

Doe and George Lott retained the United States doubles title after bitterly-fought matches with the veterans, Tilden and Hunter, and with Allison and Van Ryn in the final.

The women's championship went to Miss Betty Nuthall, the English girl, and was a hollow victory in the absence of Helen Wills Moody, world champion and six times winner of the national championship. Another Californian, Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, reached the finals. Miss Nuthall was the first foreign player to win the title.

Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., won the national girls' title for the third time. Miss Palfrey and Miss Nuthall also captured the doubles title.

STATE NEWS

Croydon will play a charity game here Sunday, opposing Frankford Red Jackets.

SHAMOKIN, Dec. 18.—(INS)—Robbery of the First National Bank, of Girardville, recently has recalled to old residents of this section an ancient Schuylkill county legend, linking two crimes over the span of a century and bringing to light again what is called "Brandonville's only claim to fame."

The legend was recalled when the automobile used by the bank bandits was found abandoned near Peddler's Grove.

Peddler's Grove got its name from the century old crime.

According to the tale, it was more than 100 years ago when a peddler stopped for the night at the Mansion House at Mahanoy City. At the counter, he displayed some gold pieces. He left the hostelry next day—and never returned.

That evening, however, his horse came trotting back to the Mansion House. The peddler, as was customary in those days, was well known over a wide section. Fears for his safety grew and a hunt was started for him.

After prolonged search, his body was found on a deserted road. He had been shot in the back and his clothing stripped of the gold he incautiously displayed.

The itinerant merchant was buried at Brandonville. Several years ago the people of Jackson erected a monument to mark the spot.

The tale of the murder made shuddery entertainment for years.

But it disappeared, as old tales do, until the modern crime and the abandoned automobile served to bring it to light and discussion again.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—(INS)—In accordance with a custom of many years' standing, James M. Auter, messenger attached to the office of the governor, will distribute small boxes of candy to children who call at the executive mansion Christmas morning.

CHARLOTTE, Pa., Dec. 18.—(INS)—A toy balloon, sent up by a boy and a girl here, travelled between 650 and 700 miles before it landed, in Ontario, Canada.

The balloon was loosed by Sam

Scotch and Edna Julianna, both of whom attached their names to the bag before it was released. Two days after the balloon was sent away, Miss Julianna received a letter from June Rossinger, of Bayham, Ontario, telling of the finding of the balloon while hunting Bayham. It was estimated, is approximately 675 miles from here.

POINTING FOR THE LOS ANGELES AND AGUA CALIENTE OPENS.

SPORT BUG.

ON their annual tournament tour of many of America's famous links, professional golfers are welcoming to their ranks this season one who was generally ranked next to Bobby Jones as the ablest of our amateurs up to the time he decided to become "a business man player" a couple of months ago. That star is George Von Elm. At this writing he has not joined the Professional Golfers' Association and he may not do so, because he evidently prefers to play as an independent. Von Elm, in fact, he likes them so well, and the expense of competing in the same has been so considerable that he decided this year to play for the money prizes so he could afford the pleasure of competing with golf's fastest company. Long known as "the blond tiger from Detroit," Von Elm has been of national note in golf ever since he was the runner-up to Jones in the memorable U. S. Amateur championship of 1924. He is a tireless competitor, as familiar with professional play as he is with amateur. Last year he tied for fourth, fifth and sixth places in the $25,000 Agua Caliente Golf Derby. Had he not been an amateur, his share of the prizes would have amounted to about $1,000. As it was, he got a handsome trophy worth approximately $50. In presenting the latter, Wirt Bowman, tournament president, said that he hoped Von Elm would become a pro by 1931 so George could share in Agua Caliente's lucrative links awards. When Von Elm figured out traveling costs at the end of the long tour and recalled the "grand" he had to pass up at Agua Caliente, that probably convinced him he should waive the trophyed courtesy of amateurism for the more substantial returns of professional effort. And "Jix" (as George is known to his pals) won the $500 third prize in his "business golf" debut at Salt Lake City recently, right at the start of this Winter tour. Horton Smith, Gene Sarazen and other money masters had better look to their lucra-laden laurels!
